COVERT ESTATE INTRODUCES “CAMP COVERT: A MID LIFE RETREAT”

Napa Newest Winery Glamps it Up

(Coombsville, Napa Valley, Calif.)—January 23, 2017—With hectic schedules and the relentless demands of work and family, what adult doesn't look back at the carefree days of childhood summer camp and wish they could turn back the clock, if only for a day?

Napa's sought after cult winemaker, Julien Fayard, his wife, Elan, and award-winning Chef Malcolm de Sieyes of Silverado Cooking School announce a perfect plan to let you do just that with 2017's new Camp Covert in Coombsville, Napa. Unlike summer camps of youth, with hot dogs, American cheese and milk, Camp Covert is a day-long immersion into the Napa Valley—one of the world's great wine and culinary capitals.

Begin the farm-to-fork journey at Chef Malcolm's garden in Coombsville, where you will start your Instagram-worthy foodie-day day harvesting organic vegetables from the garden for the day's mid-day meal.

Take a much needed work break, and sample some of Julien's top drops at the just opened Covert Estate.

After the tasting, where your freshly picked produce—and other ingredients—await you in the Fayards' newly renovated barn. Enjoy stunning valley views and a glass of the just released Azur Sauvignon Blanc; now you'll have the chance to cook alongside Malcolm at the Fayard's new outdoor kitchen. The three-course menus change with the season and what's fresh from garden. Sample menus are available here.

Finally, you'll sit down to enjoy your culinary masterpieces paired with more wines from Julien's portfolio, including the flagship Covert Estate Cabernet Sauvignon.

No camp would be complete without s'mores, and Camp Covert uses chocolate from French Laundry alum's La Fôret chocolate and Malcolm. Campfire songs are encouraged—but certainly not required.

Because this one-of-a-kind experience is as rare as the wine and cuisine, space is limited to 12-20 people, and prices begin at $400 per person, exclusive of tax.

Interested groups must book in advance in a mutually agreeable from June to early November. For more information, please contact Rebekah Allen at Rebekah@covertestate.com or 707.224.1959.
